Legal environment and space of civil society organisations in supporting fundamental rights

Serbia

January 2021

Contractor: Belgrade Center for Human Rights
Author: Bojana Selakovic

DISCLAIMER: This document was commissioned under contract as background material for a comparative analysis by the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) for the project ‘Fundamental Rights Platform and cooperation with civil society’. The information and views contained in the document do not necessarily reflect the views or the official position of FRA. The document is made publicly available for transparency and information purposes only and does not constitute legal advice or legal opinion.
Contents
1 Five most significant civic space developments in 2020 ................................. 3
  1.1 Emergency Measures; Freedom of Assembly-Negative Development (COVID related) ........................................................................................................... 3
  1.2 Freedom of Expression-Negative Development (COVID related) ............... 4
  1.3 Transparency-Negative Development (COVID related) ............................. 5
  1.4 Anti-money laundering; Financing - Negative Development (not COVID related) ........................................................................................................... 5
  1.5 Intimidation and Negative Smearing - Negative Development (not COVID related) ........................................................................................................... 6
2 Examples of promising practice ............................................................................ 7
  Potentially Increased Participation (not COVID related) .................................... 7
  Positive development to counter intimidation and reputation smearing (not COVID related) ............................................................................................... 7
3 Any other developments ....................................................................................... 8
1 Five most significant civic space developments in 2020

1.1 Emergency Measures; Freedom of Assembly-Negative Development (COVID related)

Human rights restrictions culminated during the state of emergency that was introduced on March 15th, 2020 and lasted until May 6th, 2020. Freedom of assembly was the first human right in Serbia to be restricted due to the COVID-19 epidemic. This freedom was initially restricted only indoors, and then, it was completely abolished outdoors. Complete restriction of gatherings outdoors lasted during all 52 days of the state of emergency. Sudden changes in the COVID-19 epidemic management policy in the beginning of July have negatively affected citizens’ trust in the decisions of the Crisis Team. Additionally, information appeared on the official Government portal covid19.rs on the increased number of persons who got infected or died with COVID-19 following the opening of the hotspot in Novi Pazar. In that type of atmosphere, the announcement of the President of the Republic on introducing a new curfew during the weekend (continuously for 59 hours) and a ban on gathering more than 5 people, was the reason for a spontaneous protest gathering of thousands of people in front of the National Assembly building in Belgrade on July 7th, 2020. During this gathering, which began and was held as a peaceful protest, after two hours, a small number of participants entered the National Assembly building and were violent towards the police, who responded with disproportionate force against all citizens. On that occasion, the police used tear gas, batons, dogs and horses against the citizens, 5 Anadoly Agency (2020), „Serbia imposes weekend curfew due to coronavirus“, 7 July 2020.

9 Belgrade Centre for Human Rights (2020), Press release regarding the police brutality at the protest, 8 July 2020.
many of whom, judging by numerous videos published on social networks, did not offer any kind of resistance. It was clearly visible in these videos that the means of coercion, such as the official baton, were used contrary to the Law on police. In the following days, from July 8th to July 13th, 2020 protests were also organized in Belgrade and other cities.

1.2 Freedom of Expression—Negative Development (COVID related)

The state of media freedoms in Serbia in 2020 is best illustrated by the fact that Serbia has fallen on the global Press Freedom Index. Reporters Without Borders stated that there is a clear correlation between suppression of media freedom in response to the coronavirus pandemic, and a country’s ranking. On April 1st, Serbian police arrested Ana Lalić, a reporter for news website Nova.rs, just hour after she published a report on chaotic conditions in a local hospital. In addition, the Serbian government has enacted a Conclusion according to which those who convey information from “unauthorized individuals” regarding the pandemic, spread disinformation and can be held accountable for that. The only ones authorized to give information were the prime minister, as well as the Crisis Team. The state of media freedom in Serbia during the pandemic initiated numerous reactions from the domestic public. Also, during public disturbances in Belgrade in July 2020, some reporters were physically attacked by protestors and police, because of their perceived position, based on the ownership of the media outlets they work for.

---

12 Aljazeera (2020), “What were the protests in Serbia really about?”, 21 July 2021
14 European Western Balkans (2020), “Serbia’s fall on media freedom list: “If it continues like this, there will no longer be anything to measure”, 5 May 2020.
1.3 Transparency-Negative Development (COVID related)

For almost the entire year of 2020, there have been problems with data transparency and access to information of public importance regarding various aspects of the COVID-19 pandemic. Transparency Serbia stated that the data on how public funds were spent in procuring medical equipment was doubly hidden because the government classified it and because the law was not implemented for the procurement. Suspicions that Serbian authorities hid the real number of infected people and manipulated the official statistics ahead of the elections were confirmed by the Balkan Investigative Reporting Network (BIRN) on June 22, when they published an article containing data from the official state information system, according to which the number of deaths and infections in Serbia from coronavirus is multiple times higher than what has been publicly announced. Based on this, a group of 89 Serbian civil society organisations and media organisations filed a complaint with the Commissioner for Information of Public Importance and Personal Data Protection for incomplete responses from the Institute of Public Health of Serbia “Dr Milan Jovanović Batut” in connection with health data of Serbian citizens. However, complete information has still not been provided. The denial of this information to the public has caused an increase in distrust in the work of the Crisis Team and the competent authorities, which creates fertile ground for the dissemination of unverified information and theories that can negatively affect public health.

1.4. Anti-money laundering; Financing - Negative Development (not COVID related)

The Administration for the Prevention of Money Laundering (APML) sent an official request on July 13th 2020 to all commercial banks in Serbia to provide information and documentation related to all Serbian dinar and foreign currency accounts and transactions for 57 civil organizations, media and individuals dated from 1 January 2019 to the date of reception of the request. All of them are very critically oriented toward the Serbian Government. This provoked a strong reaction from civil society and the media, as APML did not offer a clear legal basis for this action, so there is a suspicion that this is a way to intimidate activists and journalists. Doubts about the legal basis were expressed by the European 21 Danas (2020), „A group of 80 CSOs asked data on epidemic”- „Grupa 89 organizacija civilnog društva i medija traži podatke o epidemiji”, 17 July 2020.

24 Civic Initiatives (2020), “Civil society and media will not give up the fight for a democratic and free Serbia”, 28 July 2020
Commission\textsuperscript{25} in the last progress report as well. (within the chapters of Chapters 24, 24 and political criteria). In addition, UN Special Rapporteurs expressed concern that the Serbian authorities are using oversight powers\textsuperscript{26} to collect information on financial transactions of NGOs and media who stands out for their work on human rights, investigation of war crimes, monitoring of the government’s work, and other forms of investigative journalism. They also invited The Financial Action Task Force and regional bodies such as the Council of Europe’s MONEYVAL to ensure through their oversight that national legislation passed pursuant to the standards do not contravene States’ human rights obligations.

1.5. Intimidation and Negative Smearing - Negative Development (not COVID related)

Civil society in Serbia has been under strong smear campaigning\textsuperscript{27} for several years. During 2020, the systematic targeting of civil society organizations, as well as individual activists, has also continued, which, given the persistent silence of the police, prosecutors and courts is clearly part of a systematically organised campaign against the civil sector.\textsuperscript{28} As in previous years\textsuperscript{29}, governmental non-governmental organisation (GONGO)\textsuperscript{30} in Serbia continued to play an active role in attacking CSOs and damaging their reputation. For example, after the institutional pressure on civil society organisations by abusing anti-money laundry legislation, some GONGO’s publicly expressed support to such Government actions.\textsuperscript{31}

\textsuperscript{28}Belgrade Centre for Human Rights (2021), Human Rights in Serbia 2020, pp. 162-164.
\textsuperscript{30}European Western Balkans (2019), GONGOs: A serious obstacle to public debate on EU integration in Serbia, 16 October 2019.
\textsuperscript{31}Civic Initiatives (2020), Three freedoms under a magnifying glass-Review of cases of violations of basic human rights in Serbia 14-27 August, 2020, pp. 2-3
2 Examples of promising practice

Potentially Increased Participation (not COVID related)

One decade after its founding, with the adoption of the Law on Ministries and the establishment of the Ministry for Human and Minority Rights and Social Dialogue\(^{32}\), the Office for Cooperation with Civil Society was disbanded as a government service with a coordinating but advisory role in ensuring cooperation between the civil sector and all parts of the public sector. Its powers will be taken over by a newly established ministry department, which is on a higher institutional level within the government. The department will, among other things, work on improving dialogue and cooperation with civil society organizations. One of the first tasks of this ministry will be to lay the groundwork for further work on the Strategy for Creating a Stimulating Environment for the Development of Civil Society\(^ {33}\) as a comprehensive public policy document, for determining directions of further cooperation. The adoption of this Government strategy is almost 5 years late.\(^ {34}\) As this ministry will be in charge of human rights, it is expected to establish higher standards of involvement and cooperation with civil society, which should be a practice that will be taken over by other ministries.

Positive development to counter intimidation and reputation smearing (not COVID – related)

In November 2020, the Lawyers’ Committee for Human Rights-YUCOM launched the platform "In Solidarity for the Rights of All,"\(^ {35}\) in order to register all attacks and pressure on organizations and individuals in Serbia who, one way or another, defend human rights. So far, more than 80 cases have been recorded.\(^ {36}\)

3 Any other developments

Serbia began negotiations with the European Union in January 2014 and has so far opened 18 of the 35 negotiation chapters. In 2020, the process slowed down significantly and this is the first year in which no chapter has been opened\(^ {37} \), while the remarks of the European Commission and other EU institutions\(^ {38} \) are more frequent, especially regarding the state of democracy, rule of law and fundamental freedoms. This provoked a strong reaction from a group of pro-European CSOs that issued a joint statement\(^ {39} \) in December 2020 regarding the intensity of the negotiations, as well as the lack of reforms that the Government of Serbia has accepted to implement in the EU accession process. During 2021, they will carefully monitor and regularly report the results to the public, primarily in the area of the rule of law and functionality of democratic institutions, based on which they will consider the continuation of cooperation with state bodies and organizations within the accession process in order to preserve their own integrity.

\(^ {38} \) Council of Europe, Parliamentary Assembly, Committee on the Honouring of Obligations and Commitments by Member States of the Council of Europe (Monitoring Committee) (2021), "Progress of the Assembly’s monitoring procedure (January-December 2020)“, Report | Doc. 15211, 11 January 2021, Chapter 2.2.9.

\(^ {39} \) Civic Initiatives (2020), "Statement regarding the standstill of European integration in the Republic of Serbia in 2020 by the civil society organisations of Serbia", Press release, December 16\(^ {th} \) 2020.