Additional Information

Jenny Jansson Pearce is an experienced manager with close to 20 years' experience in leading and developing organisations within the fields of international development cooperation, democracy and human rights.

She currently works as Deputy Director at Right Livelihood, a Foundation established in 1980, committed to peace, justice and sustainability that each year present the Right Livelihood Award. By recognising the actions of brave visionaries and building impactful connections around the world, the Award boosts urgent and long-term social change.

Prior to her current position she was the Managing Director for SALAR International, a non-profit company owned by The Swedish Association of Local Authorities and Regions (SALAR) that develops and implements international development projects to strengthen democracy and good governance at the local level.

She has also held the position as Secretary General for the Swedish Foundation for Human Rights as well as served as a Board Member for several Swedish Child Rights organisations
