Italy	2013	Italy / Court of Cassation / Decision no. 33179/13	http://www.asgi.it/wp-content/uploads/public/cassaz_33179_2013.pdf	Race	Italian Court of Cassation (Corte di Cassazione)	The accused was the owner and manager of a website whose aim was to disseminate racist hate speech and violent discourse. He was	The Court of Cassation considered the decision of the Ordinary Court of Rome legitimate and confirmed the sentence against the complainant. More specifically, the Court stressed that Italian Courts are in charge of judging this case even though the website's server is based in the USA, because the criminal conduct was organised and implemented in Italy; most of the criminal actions have been	The decision is relevant because it is one of the first Italian Court's decisions ruling criminal conducts perpetrated on the Internet. The Court stressed the crucial importance of social media in current days and the additional possibilities they offer for criminal conducts, especially in case of discriminatory discourses and hate speech.	The Ordinary Court of Rome's decision to condemn the complainant is confirmed by the Court of Cassation.	Point 4 of the decision: "... il legislatore italiano ha punito come delitto la diffusione di idee fondate sulla superiorità o sull'odio razziale, nonché l'incitamento a commettere atti di discriminazione o di provocazione alla violenza nei confronti di persone perché

Moreover, the current use of the Internet and of the social media is a further possibility of perpetration of certain criminal conducts, including hate speech and hate crimes. For this reason, the concerned legislative disposition can be applied also in those cases where racist groups and organisations whose aim is to disseminate hate speech and racial discrimination are organised and act on the Internet.
