United Kingdom	2017	All Party Parliamentary Group on Social Integration (2017) Integration Not Demonisation: The final report of the All-Party Parliamentary Group on Social Integration's inquiry into the integration of immigrants. 25 August 2017	http://www.socialintegrationappg.org.uk/reports	Integration & inclusion	UK, All Party Parliamentary Group on Social Integration	Drawing on a number of sources the report concludes that the political and public conversation on migration surrounding the EU referendum encouraged the scapegoating and stigmatisation of migrant communities in the UK. From evidence gathered at parliamentary hearings the report also concludes that the unrealistic promises made by the Government to reduce migration "unnecessarily stoked anxiety over immigration and encouraged the growth of populist anti-immigrant sentiment." Furthermore, the report suggests that the marked increase in racist abuse aimed at the migrant population post EU referendum can, in part, be attributed to the rhetoric used by some politicians as it led to some individuals feeling as though they could act on racist attitudes when they previously would not have done so.	The report was produced on the basis of a number of sources including: oral evidence provided by expert witnesses during three parliamentary hearings; written evidence submitted by 43 organisations and the individuals in response to two calls for evidence; 10 research interviews; the testimony of front line service workers, councillors, local authority officers, teachers, young people and community group members during evidence-gathering visits to Boston, Lincolnshire and Halifax, West Yorkshire; and extensive desk research.	Alongside other qualitative methodologies 10 research interviews and three evidence-gathering visits were conducted.	Not applicable - national level
